

Views from the clinical audit community

How are respondents to the survey feeling towards clinical audit compared to 12 months ago?

Background

The data above is derived from the question: 'Do you feel more positive or negative about clinical audit than you did a year ago?' Across seven surveys (7 years) over 100 respondents have completed each survey. The clear change over time has been the convergence of results. For the first time in 2016 more respondents answered 'more negative' than 'more positive'.

Landmark moment

For the first time in 2017, the proportion of respondents answering "more negative" exceeded the other two options. Indeed, those answering "more negative" reached a peak at 36.3%

Key themes

The results for 2017 are interesting as they show a convergence over time. Results across the three options were in a band of 4.7%. When the survey was first conducted in 2010 there was 47.4% range across answer options.

Your thoughts

Please get involved via Twitter @casleicester to discuss and these results, especially if you work in clinical audit and QI. We need further debate to explore why the audit community feel this way.